DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

VOLUME III.

SPRINGFIELD, KY., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1907.

A ROUND OF TOBACCO TALK

Receiving This Week at the McLaughlin Barn.

Tobacco is being received this week at the McLaughlin barn.

Up to the present time about 280,000 pounds of tobacco have been received by the Burley Growers Company of Washington county.

Warehouse room is the only thing that retards the progress of the movement in this county, but that will be remedied when the Company's "Big Barn" is built, work upon which will soon be commenced.

Next County Court day a big meeting of the tobacco growers will be held in Springfield. An effort will be made to have Hon. Campbell Cantrell, of Georgetown, deliver a speech here on that day. Judge I. H. Thurman and Hon. W. C. McChord will also deliver speeches.

Pull the pool of 1907!

Hon. W. C. McChord was in Harrodsburg yesterday giving the boys a lift, and over in Mercer they are now starting in with a hum. Whenever the boys get "nixed," they holier for "Billie." "Billie" McChord—the man who KNOWS and DOES, and he always goes.

Mr. Glave Goddard, of Mercer county, is one of the powers behind the throne in that county. He is "up and doing." The success of this movement is due to the efforts of such men as Mr. Goddard.

Pull for the pool!

Good Prices.

Harrodsburg Herald: Prices paid for tobacco on the brakes in Lexington during the past week have been higher than the same quality of tobacco has brought in Kentucky in the last ten years. There are two reasons for the high prices which are, that the American Society of Equity claim to have over one-half of the crop pledged to be held until 15 cents a pound is paid, and the majority of the growers are holding back their tobacco until even higher prices are secured. There was sold during the week about 215,000 pounds at prices averaging from 41 to 19 cents. The same quality of tobacco has been selling for ten years for prices from 3 to 15 cents. The sales throughout the entire week were more than satisfactory and the indications are that the coming week will be the banner week for the year, not only in prices received but in the number of pounds sold.

HARDESTY.

Quitting is the order of the day with some of the house-wives of this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Kays, of Hillsboro, visited friends here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. J. B. Washburn and wife were called to Taylorsville last week by the serious illness of Mrs. John Washburn. Dr. R. H. Williams visited Mr. Edith Mitchell last Tuesday night.

Messrs. Ed. Grace and F. H. Babb were in Springfield Saturday evening. R. L. Gray spent Saturday with his aunt, Mrs. Eliza Carney, near Willisburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Haydon spent Friday night and Saturday with Mrs. Lucy Sale.

Mr. Lem Cheser bought Mr. Payton Briggs' farm at Polin for $1,000.

Mr. Sabe Hardin, who moved his saw mill on Mr. J. M. Sale's farm some time ago, has finished sawing the flooring for the bridge, and was the first man to drive over the bridge in a buggy after the floor was finished. We hope the bridge will soon be opened for public travel.

Rockford Simms Dead.

Mr. Rockford Simms, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. L. Simms, of Louisville, died at his home in that city last Thursday, after a brief illness. His death came as a great shock to family and friends. The deceased was a brother of Sr. Clara Simms, O. S. D., of Spaulding, Neb., and Mrs. R. L. Clements, of Washington county. He was brought up in this county, but moved to Louisville six years ago with his parents. On October 17, 1905, he was married to Miss Ella Haydon, and she, together with a three-month-old child survives him.

The deceased was much loved by a large-circle of friends, possessing those pretty traits of character which endeared him to all of his acquaintances. The Sun, and hundreds of his friends in Washington county, extend condolence to the bereaved ones.

Program.

The following is the program for the Declaratory Contest to be given the 22nd of February at the Opera House by the Springfield Graded School:

"Jno. Temple Graves' Eulogy on Henry M. Grady,"—Thos. Colvin.

"Flying Jim's Last Leap,"—Louise Haydon.

"Bob"—Knight Handy.

"First Settler's Story,"—Rodman Thurman.

"My Country, My Mother, My God,"—Ben F. Simms, Jr.

"Vagabonds,"—Nellie Simms.

"How the Church was built at Kehoe's Bay,"—Harry Shultz.

"Grandma Keeler gets Grandma Keeler Ready for Sunday School,"—Hattie Rice.

Music by School Glee Club.

Judges: C. M. McCHORD, JNO. POLIN, Mrs. R. A. McELROY.

Adams-Rogers.

Quite a pretty wedding occurred at Rose Hill Thursday morning at the Catholic church. The contracting parties were Miss Lena Rogers and Mr. C. W. Adams, both of Fenwick. Rev. H. G. Garman performed the ceremony. The bride is a daughter of Mr. Dan Rogers and is quite an attractive and beautiful young lady. The groom is a son of Mrs. W. G. Adams and a young man of sterling qualities.

Card of Thanks.

Litsey, Ky., Feb. 12. Editor Sun:—Through your paper we desire to thank our friends, neighbors and physicians for their kindness in our recent great sorrow and bereavement and we pray God's richest blessings to rest on each and every one of them.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. VanArsdale.

Bachelors Taxed.

Harrodsburg Herald: A bill to tax bachelors has been introduced in the Indiana House by Representative Oberling, of Lawrenceburg. It provides a tax of $5 on unmarried men between twenty-five and thirty years of age; $7.50 on those between thirty and forty; and $10 for those over forty. There are in Indiana 102,929 unmarried men over twenty-five and it is claimed that this law would produce over a million dollars. All money obtained thus would go to the school fund.

Will Call Election.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 10.—A petition is being circulated here with the idea of having a local option taken in Lexington and Fayette county under the provisions of the county unit law. Since the county is now dry, there are grave fears that the whiskey people will lose. Lexington has long been looked upon as the whiskey center of the State, but since both majority candidates have publicly pledged themselves in favor of the enforcement of all the ordinances, which include Sunday and midnight closing and the suppression of gambling houses, the anti-saloon workers feel confident enough to undertake an effort to wipe out the saloons altogether.

OUR LONG RUN CORRESPONDENT

Discusses Matters of Interest to The Sun's Readers.—Gives a History of Mollie Cotton Tail and Tells How the Boys Like to Chase 'Em.

Rev. W. Short, of Mardis, Taylor county, will end his fifth year as pastor of Pleasant Hill Baptist church, Marion county, on the second Sunday in April. Bro. Short is a good man, and a fine pastor, and the church is loath to give him up. He has accepted the care of two churches in Whitley county, to which place he will move his family. His salary will be well supplemented by the State Board. He, with Rev. E. W. Coakley, State missionary, recently held a gracious revival with Pine Knot, Whitley county, which resulted in twenty-five conversions with fifteen additions to the church.

Our only Aunt by blood, who broke up housekeeping last winter, spent a day or two with a short time ago, and we are always glad to have her come; we love to have her present with her good old-fashioned ways, sayings and advice. Just as a fellow's aunts run down to just one he comes to himself and begins to think how scarce they are getting and that the last one may soon be gone, and he, as never before, begins to appreciate them, and when he thinks seriously about it feels like going out by himself, and sitting down on a log, and wishing that time did not fly so fast, and that it would deal more gently with her, and his mind goes back to his boyhood days, of the time when she was younger than she is now, and what a motherly love and care she has for him, and wonder how long she will remain and what he will do when this dear old aunt is gone.

Nathan H. Pope, the son of Wm. Pope, was born in Boyle county Nov. 4, 1846, and died in Louisville Feb. 9, 1907. He was in his 61st year. He was married to Elizabeth Catherine Laham Aug. 24, 1868. Deceased joined the Methodist church at Wesley Chapel about forty-two years ago and was a consistent member for a number of years. At his death he was not a member of any church, having moved away from the State and, being unsettled, had not attached himself to any church. He was perfectly willing to die, having no fear of death, knowing for some months that it was just a matter of time before he would have to go. His request was for his people to meet with him in a better world. He is survived by a wife, three sons and five daughters.

But little corn is selling in our community. Two dollars seems to be the price.

On the 25 of January, Mr. Matt Cummins, of Dixville, Mercer county, Ky., passed away. His funeral was preached the following Sunday by Rev. P. Hatchett, of MacKsville, at Benton church, after which his remains were laid to rest in the Patterson graveyard. The deceased was born April 24, 1817; was married to a Miss Betsey Patterson in 1842. He held the office of Magistrate, Deputy Sheriff and High Sheriff for twenty years; joined the Deep Creek church about 55 years ago, and about 10 years ago joined the Methodist church. Mr. Cummins was one of the county's most highly respected citizens and a large-hearted and broad-minded man.

Mr. John Armstrong and Mr. J. M. Shields visited their fathers at Tatham Springs Tuesday and Thursday.

Bear Carries Child Away.

Grafton, Va., February 6.—Mrs. James Ingram, wife of a young farmer, near here, arranged to go with her husband to a dance last evening. Mr. Ingram had to be away in the afternoon and it was agreed that the woman should start alone, taking her infant child with her, and meet her husband at a fence near a small patch of woods, where he would relieve her of the child and accompany her to the dance. Mrs. Ingram started from home later than she had intended. It was dark and cold when she reached the fence. She saw dimly a figure on the other side of the fence which she took to be her husband. Calling him by name she handed the child over, so that she could climb the fence without hindrance. When she reached the second panel and looked up she was astonished to see the figure disappearing, without a word, and taking the baby with it. Mrs. Ingram then noticed that the figure traveled low on the ground, and not upright, like a man. Frantic with fear she jumped to the ground and ran, screaming and calling on her husband, whom she met walking along the road. Light was procured, an alarm was given, and a thorough search was made but nothing could be seen or heard of the infant. When daylight came this morning tracks of an immense bear were found leading from the fence through the woods to the mountains. No trace has been found of the child. There is little doubt that the infant was devoured by the hungry bear, to whom it was handed in the dark by the mother.

Letter List.

List of letters remaining uncalled for in the Springfield Post Office for week ending Feb. 13, 1907:

Logan Anderson, Liew Clay, E. De-vine, Geo. Dunn, Newt Edwards, Mrs.

Since the cold weather opened up the market rabbits are again being hunted by the local sportsmen. Last week Will Elliott and son, in one evening, killed fifty-five of these little animals. It may not be generally known that there are about thirty species of rabbits (or hares) as they are sometimes called) and some eight native kinds in North America, which are scattered from Hudson Bay, of the North, (where there is a white variety that weighs from fourteen to twenty pounds) to the Everglades of Florida, and some branch of the family is found in nearly all the European countries. Even far off India and Asia contribute two kinds, and the Cape of Africa one to this timid little family. So while the hunters of Kentucky are having sport with the little cottontails, the boys of Colorado and the Western plains are after the jack-rabbit, and the nimrods of the far North, as well as those of the Tarrid zone, are alike enjoying the sport of hunting the timid little hare.

Bro. Johnnie M. Key killed Rev. P. Walker's pulpit at Antioch on Sunday the 10th.

It seems as if stock hogs are worth just any price that may be asked, but seven and eight cents seems to be the prevailing price, and are hard to get even at that.

We had a very pleasant meeting at the Beech Grove church last Sunday. Bro. Hatchett was at his best and preached a very interesting sermon on "The Blood," which was appreciated by his hearers. Bro. Hatchett is a great man and a good preacher, and the church is united under his leadership.

"I AM FOR THE KIDS."

The following was intended for the High School column, but was unintentionally omitted:

Through an oversight of the editor of this department probably the most interesting number of last Friday's program was omitted. It doesn't matter what the older fellows do, but when one of the "kids" comes to the front and makes a hit, it is quite worth while to mention it.

It gives me a whole lot of pleasure to say that R. R. Shultz, in his Russian dialect song, Rosie Rosinsky, was undoubtedly the attractive feature in the program of Friday the 1st.

I want to acknowledge the zeal and interest he put into the preparation of his number, to thank him for his excellent rendition of it, and to regret that it was not mentioned in the program as announced last week.

I, personally, am for the "kids" anyhow. It was thro' their constant interest, courtesy, and willingness to do any amount of work at any time, that the musical program at Christmas was carried thro' so successfully; it was altogether fine that they were able to give a program at all after something less than three months' work on the mandolin and guitar, most of them not knowing their notes even, at the beginning. And the couldn't have been done, not possibly, if they had not come to every practice, and if they had not, at all the time, been willing to try, with all their fine might, to be everything that was asked of them. It is with these "kids" that we hope to do something attractive again on the 22nd. I would like them to know how entirely I appreciate the kind of work I have always found them willing to do, and how I thank them.

SUE W. RAY.

Mattingly-Osborne.

Mr. Anthony Mattingly and Miss Lilly Osborne were married at St. Rose last Monday at high noon. The bride is the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hillory Osborne of Coville. Her sweet disposition makes her a general favorite among all who know her. The groom is a very enterprising young gentleman of Louisville. The attendants were Miss Ella Corinne Osborne, sister of the bride and Mr. J. S. Mudd, of Louisville. Immediately after the ceremony the happy young couple left for Louisville, where they will make their future home. They were accompanied by Miss Ella Osborne.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Marion County Man Arrested Monday Night.

Monday night Marshall Phillips and Jailer Catlett placed under arrest Jim Bowman, of Marion county, against whom an indictment had been returned by the Marion county grand jury for rape. It is supposed that Bowman was trying to escape as it is alleged he attempted to get away from our officers when they went to arrest him by making for the back door of the house where they found him. Bowman was arrested after the receipt of a telegram from Chief Thompson, of Lebanon, who came after him last night and took him to Lebanon. It is alleged that the young woman Jas. Boman raped, is a Miss Graham. The brother of the man arrested is under indictment, returned at the present term of the Marion circuit court, for attempted rape, his attempted victim being a Miss Walston. Many expressions of doubt as to the conviction of the accused have been heard.

Duroc Sales.

Farmers Home Journal: Please report the following sales of Durocs during the last few days:

A few days ago Mr. J. E. Shelby, of Springfield, Ky., visited me and inspected my herd of Durocs. He was on the look-out for some choice bred sows for himself and some of his neighbors. He picked a beautiful Sensation-bred, He picked a beautiful Sensation-bred gilt for Mr. H. Thurman, and a good Longfellow-bred gilt for T. S. Hayes. He picked a great Master-piece-bred gilt for himself. I thought he was through buying, so we went to see my bunch of aged sows, and as he was looking at them he said, "I began to talk trade again, but I did not want to sell this sow and told him so, but he said those were the kind he wanted to buy. I finally and to let him have her, though I did it very reluctantly. Mrs. Hays is a magnificent sow. She farrowed fifteen pigs her last litter."

THE SPARROW —AND— THE OWL.

THE SPARROW.

Indications point strongly to a scarcity of fishing worms for spring consumption. "During the warm days," says a Springfield scientist, "they came too close to the surface of the earth and were frozen to death." This will necessitate fishing in this section of the State, and it is more than likely that Circuit Clerk Bob Noe will catch a few of the finny tribe next spring and summer.

I heard three little Sunday school boys cussin' one day last week. It was shocking! They "spit out" the most difficult and "choicest" profane vocabulary I have ever heard.

I heard a fellow complaining about his life burning so much coal for a few days ago. He is the same fellow who complained last summer because his wife "melted" so much ice. He's a peach of the "ciling" variety.

I heard a girl say a few days ago that Louis Cain would be a good "catch."

I was out to see County Clerk Booker a few days ago. Mr. Booker always treats the birds well. By the way I notice he has the clothes line so high on his place that it is necessary to use a step ladder to hang out the clothes. Mr. Booker "measured conclusions" with a clothes line recently and the line "got a line on him" just below the eyes. Since then the line has been a hanging high; not to high for an English Sparrow to roost upon, but about ten feet higher than Mr. Booker's head.

I heard a young lady say a few days ago that she was married to a fellow who smoked cigarettes, that the fellow who is now her beau had consented to quit next January.

People throw stones at a fellow while he is living and cover his grave with roses after he is dead. I think it would be better to throw stones at the dead and give roses to the living. You can't hurt a dead man by hitting him with a stone, neither can you do him any good by placing roses upon his grave. Therefore, I think it would be a good idea to reverse the "present state of affairs"—give the roses to the living—throw the stones at the dead. The roses will do the living good. They will brighten lives and give new hope to the despondent and weary; they will make life worth living, and will bring the heart out of darkness, and rest it a while where the fountains play. And if your nature is such that you would desire to throw a stone at the dead, then throw hard, and good from this might result—you might slip, fall and break your neck, or jerk your arm out of place.

I received a note from a boy who lives in the Pleasant Grove neighborhood, asking if I thought it possible for him to support a wife on $5.00 a week. I answered the note and told him that depended largely upon condition; that if he could manage to extract nourishment from love, air and water he might manage to exist until her daddy died.

I noticed an article in The Sun a few weeks ago about poisoning the turkey crop. Now, naturally, I am opposed to slaughtering turkeys. Turkeys come under the head of "birds," and I am opposed to killing birds. But, nevertheless, I am heartily in favor of poisoning the turkey crop. That will help the women on the farm, and I am always in favor of helping the farmers' wife.

It is surprising to me to note how jealous some people are. I know an old woman in a neighboring town (bear in mind, in a neighboring town) who quit speaking to a young lady because her husband tipped his hat and bowed politely to the aforesaid young lady. The old lady claims that her husband is not in the habit of bowing and tipping his hat, therefore she believed the young lady had "looked sweet" at "the old snagle tooth fool," as she called him. The Sparrow is of the opinion that this old lady is unduly apprehensive, because it is his honest belief that anybody who wouldn't "smile sweetly" at that old scrapper would have to be possessed of unearthly peculiarities.

While I am upon the subject of jealousy it might be well to tell of a little conversation I recently heard between two young ladies and a widow. One of these girls is jealous to a painful degree—jealous to the "point of p'ison," and from what I could gather from the conversation she was mad at a certain fellow, because he had gone buggy riding with a girl who was visiting here last summer, and of which she had just learned. The other girl and the widow tried to pacify her but she refused to be "comforted" and her wrath boiled over. "Why," said the widow, "it's foolish to get mad at that fellow. He was just as good as dead. He would be jealous all the time if I paid any attention to sport things." "It's perfectly ridiculous," said the other girl. "It wouldn't bother me in the least." Ah, then, too, he didn't hire the horse and buggy; he borrowed it; so you see it didn't cost him anything. "Oh," said the widow, "both of you are as jealous as you can be. Didn't you get mad," and the jealous girl pointed at the widow—"because Johnnie Blank wouldn't say you looked as young as a sixteen-year-old girl." And "you"—the jealous girl pointed at the "other girl"—"got so mad you could have torn yourself to pieces because a certain fellow rode the merry-go-round at the fair last year with a pretty girl from the country! Don't talk to me about being jealous! You two are perfectly awful!" And about that time the jealous girl's fellow came along, and she gave him the sweetest smile you ever saw. But you ought to have heard the widow and the "other girl." They talked that jealous girl over the coals, until I thought at one time that I ought to go tell the town marshal. It wasn't hard for me to reach the conclusion that all three of 'em were blind by jealousy. But I suppose it is human to be jealous.

The Owl will not vouch for the truth of the above story. However, it sounds plausible. The small snake, after its head was decapitated, and in a moment it was in a convulsion, may have unconsciously fastened its fangs in its friend, the big snake. I am sure the little snake did not do this through any desire to harm the big snake. It was under a great nervous strain. I understand that the male snake is accountable for the big snake's death, because when a snake, beast or man loses his head he often does serious things. But the whole story may be a farce. I don't doubt Ike's honesty in the matter. I am sure he believes he "saw snakes."

THE OWL.

While on my way from Lebanon last Thursday night—having been called there to advise with a woman who is afflicted with a husband who stays out late at night—I was attacked by a certain young man who lives in Springfield, and had it not been that he was drunk, and staggered just as he pulled the trigger, I would have been assassinated. This young fellow knows that I saw him kneeling to a young lady a few evenings ago and he thinks I am going to tell about it.

I lose a great many good items because I can't see behind me. Consequently I am having Miss Katherine Russell fit me up with some spectacles with a small mirror in one of the glasses. This will enable me to see to the rear while I am looking ahead.

The unconquerable fear of ghosts on the part of the descendants of a man named Ham prevents many chicken-roasts being depopulated.

The meanest thing in the universe is the standard's tongue. It is forged in hell, whetted in the workshops of tyranny and it "flops" out and strikes its blows under the propelling influences of a soul as devoid of love as a poisonous serpent.

On last Saturday night I heard a woman say: "It's time you are coming home! It's 11 o'clock! Where have you been, str?" "He, he, I have to church; he," said the husband. "Yes, you've been to church; you do! Guess you'll drink all the butter I have on the place tomorrow!"

I will be glad when summer comes again. There are a great many more things to see and hear in summer. Around the hammock and settee I hear many interesting conversations.

I have some notes made, of things which could not be printed. But I will put these matters before the next Washington county grand jury.

The following snake story was handed to me by a young fellow who said his name was "Ikey."

"The writer on one occasion visited the mountains of southern Kentucky and while there had the following experience: I was with a surveying party, and we were at work on the mountain near a high bluff—about fifty feet high—and the party moved on and left me at this point, instructing me to remain until they returned. They were gone about a half hour when I grew weary of standing 'in one spot' by myself, hence I walked to the edge of this bluff to look over. I was standing there viewing the beautiful scenery of the country for many miles around when I heard a rattling snake, and, on turning around I saw a rattlesnake slowly coming toward me. I had no way to defend myself except with a small walking stick about three feet long. Just as I was about to strike this snake I discovered another snake, about three times as large, in the act of springing upon me; I returned to the edge of the bluff without killing either one of the snakes. I stood upon the precipice for about a second meditating whether to jump off or to try to make my way by the snakes without receiving a poisonous bite. However, I decided to strike the small snake, which was the closest to me, and run by the large one, because I was afraid to hit the large one with such a small cane; it looked so dangerous and rattled so loud! I approached within four or five feet of the small snake and hit it a hard back across the neck—it was reaching out to bite me, so I did it. I knocked its head loose from its body and it hurried through the air, with its mouth wide open, towards the large snake. When the head came in contact with the other snake the mouth closed biting the snake near the head and disabling it in such a way that it could not get up and was easily killed. After I was sure that both snakes were dead and after I had recovered from my scare I skinned them both and brought their hides home with me. The large one measured about 54 feet in length and 12 in in circumference. Any one denying this story can call and see the hides which are in my possession.

"IKEY."

The Owl will not vouch for the truth of the above story. However, it sounds plausible. The small snake, after its head was decapitated, and in a moment it was in a convulsion, may have unconsciously fastened its fangs in its friend, the big snake. I am sure the little snake did not do this through any desire to harm the big snake. It was under a great nervous strain. I understand that the male snake is accountable for the big snake's death, because when a snake, beast or man loses his head he often does serious things. But the whole story may be a farce. I don't doubt Ike's honesty in the matter. I am sure he believes he "saw snakes."

Farm Notes.

The great importance of clean stables, clean cows and clean milk vessels is now well understood by every farmer who takes his product to a creamery or consigns it to a city dealer. What has not been so well known, perhaps, is the no less important fact that milk to be kept free from harmful bacteria must be cooled immediately after being drawn from the cow, and kept cool until used. The bacteria do not readily multiply in cold milk, but they increase in abundance in milk which is allowed to stand with the animal heat untempered.

Here is the way one farmer cares for his manure: In one corner of the barn lot he has a shed closed on one end, both sides and part of the front into which he puts the manure. Any offal, leaves, trash, etc., he finds on the place are put in there with the manure. This compost pile is left to accumulate from one year to another, and when well rotted is taken out and spread on the land. There is no doubt as to whether this method is good as the one in which the manure is spread at once on the land, for experts contend that the highest value of manure is when it is first made.

The farmer who is satisfied with the same results year after year is going backward instead of forward. Keep posted on the latest developments in agricultural science and then adapt as many of the new ideas as you can to your own place. In this way you will be constantly improving your methods, increasing the fertility and productiveness of your farm, and securing better returns for your labors. And also you will find that a delightful stimulus in your work comes from a consciousness of being master of your own fate instead of being a slave to conditions.

Items About the Farm.

In an experiment in feeding steers in Nebraska, while making oil cake ten per cent. of the grain ration did not cheapen the production secured, the finished product sold at an advance of 15 cents per 100 pounds of weight. This goes to show that the value of food when used in fattening cannot always be accurately estimated from the increase directly resulting from it. Corn is considered to be worth eight per cent more in making increase of pork than barley, and yet in growing black quality bacon, it is possible so to feed barley that a higher return relatively will be obtained from it than from feeding corn.

Lumpy jaw, so called, is a tumor of more or less rapid growth that does not always occur on the bovine jaw or head. It is found frequently in other parts of the body. It is not considered contagious and is not rapidly fatal. In some cases iodine of potassium, one and a half to two and a half drams, dissolved in water and administered in a drench daily, has been beneficial. The amount must be adapted to the size of the animal. It is not wise to give this treatment to cows in milk. A full description of the disease and treatment may be obtained free by readers of Meadowbrook Farm Notes by addressing the Bureau of Animal Industry Washington, D. C., and asking for Circular 96.

The Association of Pork Butchers in Holland has recently published the results of some trials conducted at several government experiment stations with the object of testing the relative value of different meals, especially maize, barley meal, oatmeal and buckwheat meal, for the fattening of pigs. The trial was made with 48 young pigs, all of the same age and weight, divided into four lots. The animals of each lot received, respectively, as much as they would eat of the different meals, and in addition they all had daily a supply of skim milk and some potatoes. The carcasses showed that the flesh of the pigs fattened on maize was not as firm or salable as that of the pigs fed on the other meals. This result is the same as has been reported from trials in America and Canada, and is worth noting. It would appear, therefore, that maize is a good food for growing pigs, but that other meals should be substituted, either in part or altogether, during the last month or two of the fattening process.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Coasting and skating is the order of the day and nearly all of our pupils may be seen coasting in slings or with faces covered with court plaster. The hill on the Perryville road near the school is a favorite for coasting and not the least of its attractions is the fact that the sled ends its journey invariably in about a foot of water in the branch below. It seems to be one of the chief joys of coasting to see how often a sled will break and throw one about and the reminiscences of coasting in former years seem not to dwell on the numerous good descents but to paint in vivid colors pictures of sleds losing their runners while in the middle of the descent, and students and teachers perhaps falling about and rolling down the hill like so many barrels set a going. Verily, it's great sport!

In line with the above, and dealing particularly with that portion on reminiscences, we have had a problem before us that we have decided to leave to our readers for solution. We beg that you give the matter a thorough consideration, even reading the proposition through two or three times if necessary, for we should dislike very much to give a false impression. The incident referred to was as follows, to wit: Two of the young ladies of the school were discussing the coasting of Friday night and the conversation as above demonstrated fell soon to the accidents of the evening. We quote the remarks verbatim: "You see how it was," said one of the young ladies, "Dick and I were only about half way down the hill when the sled broke down and we both rolled on down the hill. I called at Dick and said, 'Are you hurt?' and he called down to me and said, 'Are you hurt?' and I said, 'I think my nose is bleeding,' and Dick's eyes got as big as two moons when he came down to me. 'How did you know,' she was asked, 'when was so dark?' 'I reckon I could feel, couldn't I?' Her answer has created a division among the friends of her and Dick, for they as well as the editor of this column are still wondering what she meant. Dick's eyes are still doing business at the old stand and show no signs of having been punched in the dark.

All the rooms of the school are getting ready for the preliminary contest for the tournament, which will be held the first Friday in March. A number of students will be in the declaratory contest. This with the impending affair of the twenty-second is giving the teachers enough work to keep them in training for the real Tournament which will be here before we realize it.

The editor is a little short of notes this week, for all the students are keeping out of his way as they fear being written up in the columns of the Sun. The effusion printed in the last number of the paper entitled "Fell through" will be used at the tournament. It has not been decided who will do the spelling of it as it will take considerable acting to do the work in effectual manner. It has been suggested that Minton, himself, should show all present

How it is done.

This is merely to show how our school notes are read at the school. We may have to pass a rule that the notes must be left at home on Thursday morning. We considered seriously getting out a "Spelling Extra" two weeks ago so eager were the students for new developments. But then we thought about that English History lecture we intended to give the next day and desisted. We trust that we may stir up some sort of a scandal in school or at least a huge joke for our next number. We realize as well as any of our readers that it is the former they like but we do not like to have it in our school. Then we do have a hair cut to write about every day.

Thinks He's a Rooster.

Newark, O.—A man violently insane, who was known as Edward W. Hahka, residence Indiana and age 42 years, is in the Licking county jail, and the authorities are in a quandary as to what to do with him. Under the law he cannot be sent to a state hospital or county infirmary, and the officials can neither keep him in jail nor run him out.

Wahutka appeared at Mack Puck's farm, west of Lebanon, and was given permission to sleep in the stable. At midnight he removed his shirt, climbed a tree, crowed like a rooster and told those attracted to the scene that he was escaping from St. Louis detectives. After his arrest Wahutka tried to commit suicide.

Finds Snake in Incubator.

Lexington, Ky.—Willie Cudiff, the ten-year-old son of Frank Cudiff, residing on a farm in Muhlenberg county, had a very exciting experience with a large blacksnake. The boy went into the chicken house to examine some eggs in an incubator. When he removed the drawer he discovered a large blacksnake among the eggs, part of which had been devoured. The reptile came at him and wrapped his body about his legs. The boy fell to the floor in a faint, after calling several times for help. His father and one of the farm hands went to his rescue. The snake did not release its hold until it had been literally cut to pieces. The reptile was seven feet long.

Took No Bath in Three Years.

Seattle, Wash.—The fact that her husband, Christian Fredericksen has not taken a bath for three years, caused Mary Fredericksen to get a decree of divorce. Judge Foster declared that any wife was entitled to a divorce from a husband who had such an antipathy for water that he would not wash for three years. The woman in telling her story dropped the remark that three years had elapsed since her spouse had "bathed." Judge Foster at once said: "That is sufficient."

HILLSBORO.

Mr. C. M. Hines left last Monday for his new home in Ohio. We wish him success.

Frank Settles, of Lebanon, spent last week with his uncle, Mr. John Settles, of this place.

The people of this place are taking great interest in the A. S. of E. they say it is the right thing. We wish them success.

We were glad to hear from the Sparrows and the Owl again after such a long absence. We hope to hear from them every week or two. I hope they went out this way very often for they may see and hear things that we don't want every body to know.

Mr. Otis Harmon, who has been on the sick list is about well.

The little child of Mrs. Solomon Kays burned his face very badly last week by falling against the stove.

Mr. George Dean, of Harrodsburg, is visiting friends and relatives here.

The Bailey Bros. of E. Texas, have moved in the house vacated by Mr. Mike Fitzgerald. We gladly welcome them in our midst.

Miss Hattie Settles is visiting friends and relatives in Indiana.

McINTIRE.

Mr. Lucian Porter, wife and little son of Mr. Washington, were guests of Mrs. Lucinda Paine Saturday and Sunday.

Messrs. T. E. Ballard and Poin McIntire were in Louisville last Thursday on business.

Mr. James McIntire has sold his interest in his father's farm to his brother Kent, and will leave in a few days for Kansas City, Mo., where he may continue making his future home. It goes good luck attend him.

Mr. Many Alvey has been confined to his room for several days with laryngitis. Mr. Baker Spaulding and Miss Rosa Mattingly were quietly married at St. Rose on Tuesday last. Mr. Clatus Walker and Miss Julia Spaulding were the attendants.

PULL FOR THE POOL.

The farmer who refuses to pool his 1907 crop of tobacco will contribute just that much to the overthrow of a movement which, in our candid opinion, will be worth much more to him than he ever dreamed of if it becomes a success in detail.

FARMERS CAN NOT AFFORD TO STAY OUT OF THIS ORGANIZATION.

The Sun has no selfish motive in urging farmers to get into this pool. Indeed it might be better for The Sun for you to remain on the outside, sell your tobacco, get the cash and come in and "settle up." But we are willing to drift along and wait for what is "a coming to us."

ORGANIZE and stay ORGANIZED! That's what The Sun wants the farmer to do, and after a while prosperity, the like of which he has never before seen, will smile upon him, and "them good old times" will bring happiness and cash to the editor of The Sun.

Permanent prosperity is what the farmer wants.

Selling his tobacco this year at 12c and next year at 5c keeps a fellow in hot water the year round. He doesn't know what to expect; he is eternally on the anxious list, and that is trying on a fellow's nerves. What the farmer needs, and what he must have if he is successful, is an organization that will put his business upon an equitable basis.

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF EQUITY IS THE ORGANIZATION! STICK TO IT, and in the end all will be well.

Great successes are not achieved while we lounge upon flowery beds of ease, but they come as trophies after hard fought battles, after we are made sore by trials and deprivations; after our very souls have been lacerated.

Men do not become heroes or martyrs while gathering the roses and the lilies from the green swards, but these distinctions are gained while upon the barren fields of battle—in the thick of the fight—while the tumult is deafening and the blazing artillery of the opposing forces is as a streak of hell across the path that leads to The Glorious Day.

The weakening falter when the war clouds hover, and flees when the conflict is on, but, praise the Lord, the strong hearted carry the colors on and on, through the valleys and over the hills, 'mid a confusion of shrieking shell, and plant them upon the mountain top.

The same spirit in any sort of contest is necessary if we would win. If we falter all may be lost. Keep moving ahead!

Boost the A. S. of E. and the Burley Organization.

Preach it from the house tops and sing songs about it!

Pull for the pool of 1907!

But keep within the letter of the law and the bounds of reason. Make the effort in a business way and all will be well.

If you happen to hear a hot-headed sap-head doing wild talking tell him to keep his fool mouth shut.

Remember, we must win with business methods

Whoop things up!

And pull!

Pull for the pool of 1907!

Forward, march!

Hay-foot! straw-foot! cabbage and bean soup! Heep! heep!

Double-quick! Fours-right! Charge!

Pull for the pool!

A FLAMING SHAME.

If Evelyn Thaw's story, as told on the witness stand, is true Stanford White, the murdered man, was more beastly than a negro rapist and much more dangerous, and Harry Thaw, a revolting criminal himself, ought to be acquitted of this murder. The story, as told by Thaw's wife, is sickening in the extreme, and has no parallel in the history of heinous crime. It is almost unbelievable. It lowers "the human" far deeper in the depths of pollution than ever sank the untamed savage of the Dark Continents. It tells us that upon the footstool of God's universe there lingered for a period a monster so deeply-dyed in the crimson vomit of a hell, made sick by this gluttonous feast upon innocence, that the hell-hounds in the corridors of the "eternal inferno," when his soul passed through the "Black Gates Ajar," gagged and rushed to the flames.

But has Evelyn Nesbit Thaw told the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth? That is the question.

Evelyn is not Perfect Purity! A taint is easily detected!

And evidences of a highlifer and a skivlerer are visible.

Behind her are the shrewdest lawyers in America; behind the lawyers are the millions of a devoted mother, who commands from the depths a Soul of Love and a heart that bleeds for the wayward one, "Away with my wealth! Give me boy!"

And she will get him.

He will be "returned" to her. Perhaps a little the worse for the wear and tear. But just the same old "rag, and a bone and a hank of hair!"

Harry is a bad egg!

A well-developed specimen of the tunderlin aggregation of "total-dearaves."

But notwithstanding that flaming deeds, and records black, and things in robes of shame are placed at Harry Thaw's door, the bullet he fired removed from the earth, if reports be true, an octopus that wallowed in vice and fed upon the world's most precious and beautiful things—the spotless lives of young womanhood. And Harry Thaw ought to be acquitted.

Unwritten Law is great and mighty, and its volumes are shelved in the breast of every man with a human heart.

CRUSHING OUT INTEMPERANCE

(Frederic J. Haskins, in Courier-Journal.)

Half of the twenty million people who drink in this country constitute the dangerous element of our population, and are confined largely to the slums of the larger cities. Those who study the source of crime and poverty claim that 75 per cent. of all such cases is caused by drinking. The use of wines and spirits is on the decrease in the United States, while beer is becoming more popular. We have fewer retail liquor dealers now than there were a year ago, while the number of places where beer is sold is increasing rapidly.

As many railroad accidents were in times past accounted for by employees being drunk, 800,000 of the 1,200,000 railroad men now on duty in the United States are under orders to neither drink nor to enter a place where liquor is sold. The penalty is dismissal from service. In Canada if a locomotive engineer or a train conductor is found drunk while on duty he is liable to ten years' imprisonment. A significant comment on the abstinence of railroad men is that when the Locomotive Engineers held their annual convention in Memphis last year, the papers stated that in all the gatherings held in that convention city there had never been a more orderly set of men.

Just to see in what way the saloons were superior to the other attractions life might offer a working man, or a homeless one, a prominent minister turned hobo for a while in order to study the question at first hand. Afterward he told of the universal kindness of the saloonkeeper and of the various plans he had for encouraging patrons. He told of the drinking fountain at the front door for the use of "teamsters' horses;" of the setting forth of a free lunch equal to a table d'hôte dinner. The minister told his church people of the things they must combat if they would win men from the saloons, and added: "For $500 men join exclusive political and social clubs, on the avenue of the metropolis. For $5 some men join Young Men's Christian Association clubs, but for five cents the multitude of men whom only God and the saloonkeeper and the ward boss know nightly join one democratic club in American life, the American saloon."

Southern States are more aggressive at this time than those of any other part of the country in attempting to curb drunkenness by law. Kentucky, whose very name brings up the thought of mint juleps and apple toddy, has 119 counties, and of these ninety-six are without saloons. In all Kentucky there are but five counties where liquor may be sold all over the county. In the matter of local option elections Illinois leads all other States with a record of 700 communities which have voted the saloons out. Mississippi and Texas are more than three-fourths dry by virtue of local option laws. Texas prohibits screens in drinking places, and Indiana requires saloons to keep lights burning all night with window shades open.

Tennessee, another great whisky producing state, has had a remarkable anti-saloon movement, with the result that there are but nine towns in the entire Commonwealth where saloons are kept. Every candidate for a state office in Tennessee, Democratic or Republican, is a temperance reformer. Senator Carmack, a Democratic leader, has pledged himself to a movement to drive every saloon from the State. Californians say that a great temperance lesson was taught by the San Francisco earthquake. San Francisco consumed much liquor and was known as a wide-open town. When the great seismic disaster occurred the saloons were closed and kept closed. Men who swore they would die if they did not have alcohol were made to go to work cleaning away debris, and it is said many of them have stayed on the "water wagon" ever since. North Carolina has also taken advantage left the local option laws. Greenlaw, with more than 30,000 population, is as dry as a bone. South Carolina has the State dispensary system.

Indiana, a State which ten years ago, regarded the distillers' and brewers' lobby as its real ruler, is now trying to keep the legislature from going too far in enacting laws which cannot be enforced, thus weakening the whole anti-drunkenness movement. In that State the Moore law permits the citizens of any geographical division in county, township, city or ward to abolish saloons by a petition signed by a majority of its citizens.

Maine is technically a prohibition State where the sale of intoxicants is an outlaw business. The New York Sunday laws are strict on the books, but elastic in enforcement. In Chicago a city made up largely of foreign-born citizens and some foreigners the movement toward restriction of the liquor traffic is slow. Ohio has progressed from a simple precinct local option law to a regulation which will permit the citizens of any prescribed district in a city to prohibit saloons within that territory, the only requirement being that a majority of the citizens sign a petition against them.

Nebraska has a State inebriate law providing for the "examination of diplomats, innkeepers and persons addicted to the excessive use of morphine, cocaine or other narcotic drugs; for the detention, care and treatment of such persons and for their parole." The only home for drunkards' wives ever established in the United States, and possibly in the world, is at Des Moines, Ia. This was made a reality by the will of the late James Callahan, who left $20,000 for the purpose of building it.

In those communities where the percentage of foreign-born population is largest, there is the least effort toward legal restriction of the liquor traffic, which fact is taken to indicate that pure-blooded Americans have set their face against the vice of drunkenness. The Southern States received but four per cent. of the immigrants which came into the country last year, they are leading the crusade against the saloon. Many Southerners believe that the abolition of the dye would go farther toward improving labor conditions and prove the surest solution of the race problem that could be devised. An effort is being made to secure the enactment of laws which prohibit the shipment of liquor into prohibition territory by applying interstate commerce provisions.

The legislatures of forty States are all of them will consider the liquor question in one form or another. While there are comparatively few men who are willing to expose the cause of total prohibition, it is undeniably true that the movement to restrict drunkenness is nation-wide, and that taking the nation as a whole drunkenness is on the decrease. Thirty million of our people, or over one-third of our population already live under prohibition law.

Peculiarity of Cats' Fur.

Cats' fur has no oily substance in it, and consequently is more easily washed through than that of most other animals.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by Haydon & Robertson, Druggists, 50c.

FINE STOCK

EDITOR SUN:—I have just returned from a short trip through Indiana and Kentucky in the interest of my business of handling Duroc Hogs. We people of Washington county think hogs are bringing high prices here. They are, but they are even higher in other places. I saw fat hogs shipped from Indiana last Wednesday at $6.65 at shipping stations, and stock hogs change hands at 7 and 7 1/2 cents and every where bred sows and sows and pigs were simply out of sight and it looked as if everybody was hunting for them. I came back to Kentucky and bought. You know of Kentucky's famous trios, handsome women, fine horses and good whisky. Well you can strike another flower in that bunch and call it the Big Four, for Kentucky undoubtedly had the best red hogs I saw anywhere both in individuals and breeding. Some people may say the hog has no business in the above class. Well he may not, anyhow he is nearly King at the present price and demand. Well as I said, I came back to Kentucky and bought. I paid for them! Yes! Lord but I paid for 'em. But I have got the goods. It's hats off to nobody now in the red hog business. I want to say to my friends and customers that in the coming spring and summer I will be able to furnish them any thing they may want, in pairs or trios or no akin.

J. L. ALLEN, Prop.

Mrs. W. H. Leachman received a letter last week, which stated that her brother, Mr. Hinkle, who lives in Colorado, had received a stroke of paralysis, and that his condition was serious. Mr. Hinkle attended school in Springfield many years ago.

On Saturday Feb. 16, bids will be let pulpit orator, and no doubt will have large crowds in attendance at his services.

At a meeting of the Washington County Farmers Institute here last Saturday, Messrs. W. A. Clements and Ben Hayden Jr., were chosen as delegates to attend the State meeting at Shelbyville February 26, 27 and 28.
They were instructed to vote for Mr.
Guthrie Wilson, of Nelson county, for a member of the State Board of Agriculture, Forestry and Immigration.

GENSING "FARM."—Mr. T. R. Be-cey, of Texas, has a "gensing farm," which will in a few years make him lots of money. He has now 5,000 plants in a thriving state, and 3,000 smaller plants doing nicely. In five years Mr.
Becey expects to reap the harvest, and if the "gensing" does as well in the next two or three years as it has the past year it will net him a profit of $10,000 or $15,000. He has promised to write an article for The Sun upon the subject of the cultivation of this very valuable plant.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST

CAMPING IN DEPOT.

The Mother and Child Wait Five Days in Vain For the Father.

Puduch, Ky.—Penniless and thinly clad, Mrs. Sallie Crenshaw is camping here, patiently waiting for her husband to arrive from Carbondale, Ill., less than 100 miles distant. She has been here five days, her seven-year-old son by her side, and although the authorities have failed to locate the husband, she still believes he has not forsaken her.

Mrs. Cronshaw came to Puduch from Carbondale, where her husband was employed. He sent mother and child away, promising to come the next day. She ran out of funds, and attaches of the depot have furnished food. But she refused to accept lodging, sleeping on a bench.

KENTUCKY PIONEER

And Father of Urey Woodson Is Dead in Far-Away Kansas.

Owensboro, Ky.—News reached here of the death of Samuel C. Woodson, in a hospital in Wichita, Kan., of influenza, the result of old age, he being almost 82 years of age. Mr. Woodson was born at Madisonville, Ky., May 27, 1825. He removed to Evansville, Ind., at the close of the civil war, living there until 1881, since which time he has made his home with his eldest son, Samuel C. Woodson, Jr., at Caldwell, Kan. The deceased was also the father of Mr. Urey Woodson, secretary of the democratic national committee, and of Mrs. Susie W. Conway of Washington, D. C. His wife was Miss Rebecca Hawthorn, of Princeton, Ky. She died in Owensboro in 1883.

TEN MILLIONS

Will Be Added to the Stock of Cumberland Telephone Company.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—At a meeting here of stockholders of the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co., this being the home office of the company, which is incorporated under Kentucky laws, the old board of directors was re-elected with the exception of N. Baxter, Jr., of Nashville, who was succeeded by John W. Barr, of Louisville, president of the Fidelity Trust Co. The vacancy caused by the death of George R. Knox was filled by the election of W. N. Bransford, of Nashville. To meet the demands of the growth of the business and to acquire new properties an increase in capital stock from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 was authorized.

FIVE RAILROADERS

Residing in a Kentucky Town Killed Within Thirty Days.

Lexington, Ky.—Claude Marshall, who was killed in the explosion of a boiler at Colby, Ky., was the last of five railroad men of the little town of Sadiaville to be killed in railway accidents in the last 30 days. The others were: Jas. Sullivan, conductor on the Milton Smith Summoned.

Louisville, Ky.—President Milton H. Smith, of the L. & N. railroad, and C. A. Davies, superintendent of the L. C. & L. division of the L. & N. railroad, were summoned to appear in P. R. Poland, of Lawrenceburg, to appear in the circuit court at Shelbyville, Ky., February 14, to show cause, if they can, why they should not be proceeded against for contempt in not complying with the orders of the court in maintaining adequate local passenger and freight train service between Shelbyville and Christiansburg.

Death Due To Heart Disease.

Covington, Ky.—Anton Graber, aged about 38, died suddenly at a local hotel here. When the porter, George Irwin, went out he heard a peculiar noise. Going to the room, he found Graber on the floor in a dying condition and notified Dr. Nelson. By the time the physician arrived Graber had died. Coroner W. W. Tarvin was notified and held an inquest. He declared that death was due to heart disease.

Kentucky's Oldest.

Louisville, Ky.—The body of "Uncle Jackson" Hines, who was 106 years old, was taken to Brandenburg for burial. "Uncle Jackson" yielded to a fatal ailment while on a visit to his daughter, Belle Wimp. He was the oldest negro in Kentucky and probably the oldest native. He was the father of 15 children. His mother died 25 years ago at the age of 110 years.

Bradley Will Not Run.

Louisville, Ky.—In a letter to the Courier-Journal ex-Gov. W. O. Bradley reiterates his previous declaration that he "would and could not run for governor." He says he has received many letters from the subject and expresses his gratitude for them.

Distillers To Meet.

Louisville, Ky.—The Kentucky Distillers' association will meet February 14 at the Galt house. It will be the first session in two years. President D. Meschenford says important matters will be considered.

Lumber Dealers Elect.

Louisville, Ky.—Officers were elected by the Kentucky Retail Lumber Dealers' association. President L. N. Combs of Lexington, having declined re-election, was succeeded by C. W. Roark, of Greenville. George L. Tomlinson, of Winchester, was elected vice president to succeed Mr. Roark, while C. R. Taylor, secretary, and Henry Koehler, treasurer, of this city, were unanimously re-elected.

"Dry" Districts Barred To Brewer.

Frankfort, Ky.—The court of appeals, in affirming the case of the Lexington Brewing Co. vs. the Commonwealth, from Boyle county, decided that a manufacturer can not send its leading liquor in a local option district.

DEFIED PATENTS.

Mountains and Sleetermonts, Youthful Lovers Walked 40 Miles To Wed.

Whitesburg, Ky.—Ransom Sexton, aged 17 years, and Cora Flannery, barely 13 years of age, fled 40 miles on foot across the Cumberland and Black mountains through a storm of sleet to Whitesburg, where they were married by Elder John A. Craft.

Sexton's love for the girl began in school, near Tacoma, Va. Their amours became so pronounced that the teacher dismissed them, it is said. Then their parents sought to take a hand, but the young lovers eluded them and started on their long journey to be wedded.

LOVER SHOT DEAD

As He Approached the Home of His Prospective Bride.

Richmond, Ky.—William Gay, of Jackson county, procured a license here to marry Miss Sophia Gabbard, aged 16 years, daughter of William Gabbard, a farmer living near the 20 mile county line. As he went to the girl's home, where the ceremony was to have been performed, Gay was shot and instantly killed. The cause of the killing is not given.

Killed By a Car.

Newport, Ky.—Randolph Reischer, son of ex-Circuit Clerk A. L. Reischer, was struck by a car and fatally injured near his home on East Third street. He alighted from an east-bound car and walked directly in front of a west-bound car going at a good rate of speed. He was thrown some distance and was rendered unconscious, and was taken to his home, where Dr. Stine, and Physician attended him. An examination developed that his skull was fractured.

Girl Horse Thief.

Owingsville, Ky.—Pearl Hughes, the notorious woman horse thief, is in trouble again. She was given as soon as the girl Broadly and started through here on west. She was overtaken, arrested and brought back to this place as a prisoner.

A Habit to Be Encouraged.

The mother who has acquired the habit of keeping on hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saves herself a great amount of uneasiness and anxiety. Coughs, colds and croup, to which children are susceptible, are quickly cured by its use. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and if given as soon as the first symptoms of croup appear, it will prevent the attack. This remedy contains no harmful drugs, and mothers give it to little ones with a feeling of security. Sold by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

DOORS BARRED AGAINST POLICE. WHO WORKED FOR SIX HOURS TO CAPTURE SALOON PATRONS.

Only One Was Able to Effect an Escape—Risky Jumps By Another Made Many Shudder.

Springfield, O., Feb. 11.—After six hours of desperate work the police forced an entrance into Patrick Kehoe's saloon, at Main and Penn streets, captured 23 loiterers. The raid was sensational and some of the scenes were thrilling. The police did not accomplish their purpose until after they had battered down five doors, heavily barred with iron, and then they were forced to call upon the hook and ladder crew of the Central Engine house for assistance.

Entrance was finally gained by cutting a hole through the roof and surprising the loiterers, who had gone to the attic to avoid arrest. Fully 5,000 people gathered about the saloon, and for a time things looked threatening. The police were abused and attempts were made to block them in their work, but they kept at their task and finally won out.

In the morning a squad of detectives and patrolmen, in charge of Sergeant Joseph Creager, surrounded the saloon. The police, were armed with a warrant, and when refused admittance they went to work on the outer door with axes and sledgehammers. They found their task no easy one, but the door finally gave way.

Once inside a rush was made for the bar room, but it was deserted. The building in which the saloon is situated is a three-story brick. The police started for the second floor and found the doors heavily barred. They finally yielded, but no one was in sight. Their experience on the third floor was the same. Then they started for the attic. The door leading to this was so heavily barred that it would not even yield to a jack.

The loiterers stood it as long as they could and then they were forced to make their presence known. They were packed so tight in the attic that they could not get out. They looked open the windows to get air and some crawled out on the roof. They hurled all kinds of epithets at the police. The police were armed by one of the loiterers with a revolver. The police jumped from the top of the building to a telegraph pole, across an eight-foot sidewalk. His attempt to escape was discovered by the police before he could descend the pole. The fellow climbed back and once more started the crowd by springing from the pole to the roof. He caught hold of it and drew himself up.

The crowd was given another scare a few moments later when another fellow jumped from one roof to another. The latter being very slanting. Many closed their eyes, thinking that the man would be killed. He managed to hold on, crawling along the edge of the roof. The building and finally made his escape.

WOMAN'S NECK BROKEN.

Struck Down By Unknown Assaultant While On Her Way Home.

Memphis, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Mercedes Donovan, wife of Eugene V. Donovan, an officer of the Memphis fire department, was killed by an unknown assailant with a blow which broke her neck.

She was returning from a shopping tour, accompanied by her three-year-old daughter and several other children. Robbery was evidently the motive for the attack. The attack occurred within a short distance of Mrs. Donovan's home, in a thickly populated section of the city. She died within a short time.

Broke the Treaty On Arbitration.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 11.—Advices received here are to the effect that it was President Bonilla, of Honduras, who broke the treaty of Cordoba, which provides for the arbitration of questions in dispute between the Central American republics, and that as a result of this the tribunal, which was sitting at San Salvador, in an endeavor to settle the differences between Nicaragua and Honduras, was dissolved.

Engineer Scalded.

St. Louis, Feb. 11.—A west-bound passenger train on the Wabash railroad, was wrecked at Fossy Junction, in the outskirts of the city, by a defective frog. The engine was overturned and Engineer Louis Wiseman was plumed underneath and probably fatally scalded. The baggage car was smashed.

Arsenal Explosion.

London, Feb. 11.—A terrific explosion wrecked the chemical research workshop of the War Office here. All the windows in the town were broken. It is believed no lives were lost.

The Girl's Condition Is Serious.

Kansas City, Feb. 11.—Miss Jefferson, aged 19 years, was arrested and identified by Flora May Clark as the negro who brutally assaulted her as she was going home from work.

Won the World's Championship.

New York, Feb. 11.—Capt. Charles W. Oldrieve claims the distinction of walking the water from Cincinnati to New Orleans, a distance of 1,000 miles, in 40 days, kicking at 45 minutes, thereby winning the world's championship and a bet of $5,000.

Whole Family Perished.

Berne, Switzerland, Feb. 11.—An entire family of seven persons perished in a conflagration at the Mogenal brewery at Steinbach. Eight other families narrowly escaped a similar fate.

OREGON ISLAND GOATS HAD DUCK SHOT HABIT

Pellets Only Ticked Them and They Followed Hunters All Day to Get Peppered.

Seattle, Wash.—According to a man from Oregon, a large number of goats on Savie's island, in the Columbia river, lost their lives by drowning during the recent floods. Peter Harrington, the informant, says there were so many ducks shot in the hides of the unfortunate quadrupeds that the hand-carry was too much to be overcome and down they went like sinkers on a fishline.

For many years these goats had looked upon Savie's island as their home and an invasion by duck hunters gave them much annoyance. They tried to get rid of the poachers by appearing at most inopportune moments and starting away the ducks. To get even the wrathful hunters turned their guns on the rightful inhabitants, who gave wild blasts, jumped in the air and tried to cover the building.

After a while the goats got used to the game and liked the ticking sensation so well that they would follow the shooter around all day, hoping to be peppered. Their hair being long and their hides tough, the goats gradually got a good sized skin which they were proud to wear.

The additional weight was a great thing for Billy when it came to butting. He could strike a blow that was worse than that of a policeman's club on the thin side of a sleeping traveler's shoe. Sometimes a hunter would be crouching in his blind waiting for a flock of mallards to come down to the decoys, all of a sudden there would be a rush and whack, and he would go keeling over the top of the inclosure.

Billy didn't know the laws of momentum, but he got action just the same, and after it was all over he would wiggle his whiskers and laugh. To avenge the insult another would add a few more ounces of lead to vort with delight.

It was a great game until the water got too high, and then Billy had to go under.

No sooner does science conquer one insect enemy of the farmer than another intrudes its unwelcome presence upon the plant world. The constant expansion of the means of intercommunication between different countries is no doubt responsible for much of this. The Paris Academy of Sciences has recently reported that a kind of fly, Ceratitis capitata, has recently made its appearance in great numbers in the environs of the city, and that it threatens great damage of apricots and peaches. With a view to combating it successfully, the French entomologists are making a study of the biology of this fly and its new environment in France is already under way.

Items About the Farm.

The commissioner of internal revenue has decided upon the following formula for denaturing alcohol:
Alcohol 100 parts
Wood alcohol 10 parts
Benzine 10 parts
The denaturing will be done on the premises where the alcohol is produced and in special bonded warehouses used for that purpose only.

There has been a persistent prejudice among feeders of beef cattle against silage, but recent experiments have shown that feeders will make an excellent growth if they will rich feed along with corn silage and will gain quite as fast as when on good pasture. The dairy type steer is not profitable for beef, as he shows a low dressing percentage, and a high percentage of offal. Fat on the organs increases the weight of the cheaper parts. The beef steer puts on fat on the higher priced cuts.

The American Fruit and Nut Journal says that there is no class of people more favorably situated for nut growing than the farmers, and suggests planting along farm buildings, around lanes and in odd corners. Nut trees may be planted for ornament and shade as well as for use. Hickory nuts will flourish in New England, and the chestnut in the central and some of the southern states. In the central west walnuts will flourish, while in the South, Atlantic and Gulf states the pecan and other nut bearers thrive; and all will yield a profit.

The Michigan experiment station bulletin on Roots Supplementary to Silage for Dairy Cows, makes the following suggestions: The addition of roots to an already complete ration of silage, clover hay and grain for a dairy cow stimulated both milk and butter fat production. In case a large production is desired, as in making records, roots might be used to advantage. The percentage of butter fat in the milk was constant whether on the root ration or without roots. The cows gained in weight more on the root ration than when fed without roots, but the difference was not so great. The cost of the ration mentioned was varied with the addition of roots to such a degree as to lessen the profit of production, milk costing 43 cents more per 100 pounds, and butter fat 1.1 cents per pound as a result.

An Old Valentine.

Editor Sun:—Enclosed find a valentine written some twenty years ago by my grandfather, Wm. F. Young, who emigrated to Garrard county, Ky., when quite young from Charlottesville, S. C. While on a visit to this county after his majority, he met Miss Beckiannah McKittick and on his return home wrote her this valentine, which is unique in form, original in composition and splendid in chirography. The same fall after writing this valentine this couple were married, settled in this county and spent the remainder of their lives here. From this union there have sprung such a vast number of kinpeople that I am balked when I try to give the number.

The following stanzas were written in a beautiful hand on heavy paper, the paper being artistically cut with a penknife:

February 14, 1807.
To Miss Beckiannah McKittick,
Washington County, Kentucky.

Hail thee Queen of beauties fair
And here how I am involved in care
By winning of those charms of thine
Which doth all others far outshine.

When you those features fair and bright
Display and often to my sight
With pleasure I do crave
Those lovely charms attending you.

Alas! this pleasure does not last
Those pleasing scenes, they soon are past
I find I'm brought into thrall
By you I lost my heart, my all.

Fortune took a decided part
Deeper for to involve my heart
And put in mind of my loving Dove
The charming name that won my love.

So soon as your name I drew Transported all my thoughts they flew
And recognized those features fair
Which almost drove me to despair.

With pleasure I ever view
Those lovely charms attending you
I ever hope to see
A day when you will smile on me.

A prospect fair, a pleasing scene,
Trouble be to see this charming Queen
With nature sweet incline to prove
That she would pay me love for love.

This day to add unto my love
I, meeting with a friendly twin
To spend the day they did incline
For each to draw a valentine.

But where is my thought attending me
I can't aspire that sight to see
That give to me to tell to you
Those lines below are truly true.

Happy is the man and happy is he
That gets you for his bride to be
Your beauty will his Youth engage
Your wisdom will delight his age.

If fortune him would so dwell
That you my loving bride should be
Not his care I would improve
But study how to please her.

Oh! Lady fair I crave of thee
That I by you excused be
For sending of these lines of mine
Which claim you for my valentine.

I believe this valentine is one of the most unique in existence, as well as one of the oldest. A. J. LOWE.

A Favorite Remedy for Babies.
Its pleasant taste and prompt cures have made Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a favorite with the mothers of small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds and prevents any danger of pneumonia or other serious consequences. It not only cures cough, but when given as such as the croupy cough appears will prevent the attack. For sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

Lazy Liver
Suffering the misery and agony that come from your liver being out of order—trying to bear up in the belief that you will be all right in a day or two—are you deliberately neglecting the blunder of believing that you don't need medicine?

If you are, the sooner you commence the use of the better it will be for you. You can't afford to fool with your liver, and you certainly can't afford to be without this great remedy if your liver is out of order. Don't delay.

Both you and your liver will be better "livers" than ever. DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN can be obtained in both dollar and half-dollar sizes from all druggists.

Your money will be refunded if it does not benefit you. Your postal card request will bring by return mail a full and complete book on "DISEASES OF THE LIVER" and free sample to those who will try this wonderful remedy. Send today.
